Chronicle: A Publication of the Augustana Historical Society is a re-envisioned periodical publication that will focus on specific historical eras and topics in the history of Augustana College. The first volume, edited by Ann Boaden and Atticus Garrison, considers the late 1960s and early 1970s at Augustana. Given the importance of campus protests to recent national news, the Augustana Historical Society thought it would be timely to revisit another moment of turbulence. The publication features both reflections by alumni and snippets from historical documents. Please join us for snacks and conversation...and pick up your own copy of our latest publication. Note: If you're an AHS member and unable to make it that day, we will ensure that you receive your copy of Chronicle, Volume 1 soon after the event.
